

Useful Games:

Prodigy

This is occasionally used in school, but it covers all areas of the maths curriculum in a fun way - the kids seem to love it.

Useful Websites:

Maths Frame

A variety of games, resources, problems, as well as a useful area for parents that set out all the areas that we have to cover in the Year 5/6 maths curriculum.

Maths4Everyone

A fantastic site that contains worksheets, review sheets, games, quizzes and more for all areas of the maths curriculum. This covers KS1 all the way through to GCSE, so ensure you have selected KS2 (Lower) (this is how Years 3 and 4 are categorised) when looking at resources.

BBC Bitesize

All the maths topics are covered here with learning guides, videos and quizzes. Helpful if you want a quick refresher of an area or check you're doing something right.

Times Tables dot com

A useful site for learning your times tables, not just practising them! If you're using it free, it does restrict the number of questions per day, but still a useful tool.
